🩺 Problem Statement – HealthAI

In today's digital world, many individuals seek health-related information online before consulting a doctor. However, they often encounter:

- Misinformation or conflicting advice from unverified sources

- Overwhelming and technical content not tailored to their personal health context

- Delayed decision-making, especially in early or unclear symptom stages

- Limited access to professional consultation, particularly in remote or underserved regions

These challenges create confusion, anxiety, and sometimes misguided health actions.
